Freedom of Information

Provision of ARCHITECT, ENGINEERING AND PROFEESIONAL SERVICES FOR UHI SHETLAND CAMPUS REDEVELPOMENT PROJECT PORT ARTHUR HOUSE

The University is subject to the Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 (hereby referred to as FOISA). This Act obliges all public bodies to provide and maintain a general right of access to information about all public contracts and procurement activity held by them, subject to certain conditions and exemptions. Therefore, all information submitted to The University may be subject to disclosure in response to a request for information made pursuant to FOISA.

Below is an overview of the main exemptions from disclosure, relevant to public sector procurement:

- Section 27 Information Intended for Future Publication: This exemption applies if the public body, or anyone else, intends to publish the information within a period of 12 weeks from the date of the request for the information. The intention to publish within the 12 week period must have been held at the time the request was made.
- Section 33 Commercial Interests and the Economy: (1) Trade secrets and (2) information likely to prejudice substantially the commercial interests of any person (including the public body, a bidder or competitor).
- Section 35 Law Enforcement: Primarily relevant to public bodies with a law enforcement role, which includes both police forces and prison authorities, this exemption protects information where disclosure would damage policing or security arrangements.
- Section 36 Confidentiality: This exemption states that if, by disclosing information, a public body would be subject to an actionable breach of confidence, the information should not be disclosed. By 'actionable', this means whether there is a reasonable prospect that a court of law would rule against the public body for releasing the information. However, a breach is not likely to be actionable if the public interest in disclosure outweighs the public interest in keeping the confidence.
- Section 38 Personal Information: Provides an exemption from disclosing information if disclosure would breach any of the data protection principles as set out in the UK GDPR and the Data Protection Act 2018.
- Section 39 Health, Safety and the Environment: Most likely to be relevant where the information requested is environmental information, the exemption is likely to be applicable in relatively rare situations, principally where disclosure could endanger the physical or mental safety of individuals.

All of these exemptions, other than sections 36 and 38 (with caveats), are qualified exemptions, i.e. subject to a public interest test.

Any procurement information that has an environmental element becomes exempt from the Act, but subject instead to the provisions of the Environmental Information (Scotland) Regulations 2004 (EIRs). The EIRs specify what type of information is likely to be covered, and includes information on:

- The state of elements of the environment and interaction between them.
- The state of human health and safety, conditions of human life, the food chain, cultural sites and built structures in as much as they are or may be affected by the state of the elements of the environment and interaction between them.
- Substances, energy, noise, radiation or waste affecting or likely to affect the state of the elements of the environment and interaction between them.
- Measures (including policies and plans) and activities affecting or likely to affect, or intended to protect the state of elements of the environment and the interaction between them.

- Emissions discharges and other releases into the environment.
- Cost benefit and other economic analysis used in environmental decision-making.

Only the information specific to environmental issues will be subject to the EIRs and all 'surrounding' information would remain subject to FOISA.

Despite the previously listed exemptions from disclosure, it should be noted that even where bidders have indicated that information is commercially sensitive and / or confidential, The University (in its sole discretion) may determine that it is required to disclose or publish said information under FOISA / EIRS, particularly if such disclosure is pursuant to the Act's aims of promoting transparency, ensuring best value for money and protecting the relationship between public and private sectors.

Should The University identify a requirement to publish sensitive or confidential data under FOISA / EIRS, The University will consult with bidders on any request for information prior to the release of such data where it is permissible or reasonably practical to do so. However, bidders acknowledge that The University may be required to disclose sensitive or confidential data without an opportunity for consultation, and the decisions of The University in the interpretation of FOISA / EIRs including, without prejudice, what information they are and are not required to provide under them, shall be final and conclusive. The University will assume no liability in respect of any decisions made and / or information that may be disclosed either at the insistence of the Scottish Information Commissioner or otherwise. The University may also decide to publish certain information via their publication scheme which they maintain under FOISA.

If bidders consider that any information included in their submission is commercially sensitive and / or confidential, they should identify such information and explain what harm they believe may result from disclosure, as well as the time period applicable to that sensitivity, on the Sensitive Information Index (sample below). Please note that in the event of a tender containing no information the bidders considers sensitive or confidential, a signed and dated Nil Return will be required.
